No Lives Matter Updates Extremist Messaging and Publishes Tactical Guides

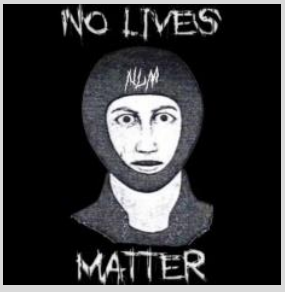
No Lives Matter (NLM) will use encrypted messaging platforms to recruit like-minded individuals, partner with white racially motivated extremists (WMRE), and publish tactical guides. To grow its network and provide updates to its extremist messaging, NLM primarily operates online via Telegram, an encrypted messaging platform with limited content moderation, where violent rhetoric and extremist content can reach target audiences.

- In July 2024, a user in a NLM Telegram channel posted a list of updated group entry requirements, which included attacking the "mundane," committing arson, and vandalism. Another user stated, "we are looking for more soldiers to join our ranks, true misanthropic individuals," and "we only accept people that do irl [in real life] action." In April 2024, NLM posted clarifications on acceptable submissions for membership which specified that self-harm acts like "simple cutsigns" would no longer suffice for admission into NLM, stating "we need deep bloody cuts that represent us." Users in the channel shared photos of graffiti and a vandalized vehicle, highlighting acts that led to the acceptance of past members.

- In July 2024, NLM shared a post on its Telegram channel to announce a partnership with Mordwaffen Division (MWD)—a European neo-Nazi group—stating "NLM x MWD deadly alliance" and "Support your local nazi terrorists." In 2023, NLM partnered with a Russia-based WRME group, Maniac Murder Cult (abbreviation MKU based on Russian translation) to co-author the NLM Kill Guide, which provided attack tactics, techniques, and procedures (TTPs). Several pages in the guide reference MKU, calling the group its "brothers in arms" and stating "NLM x MKU we can strike anywhere, at any time."

- In June 2024, NLM released two extremist publications called the Terror Guide and the Manhunt Guide, both of which provide TTPs for members to "sharpen" their skills." The Terror Guide includes instructions for making poison and constructing various improvised explosive devices. The guide also provides operational security (OPSEC) practices, weapons preferences, fighting techniques, and instructions for "manhunting" victims. The Manhunt Guide provides additional tactical guidance and OPSEC techniques while providing "manhunt requirements" such as recording "brutal" beatings.

No Lives Matter Ideology



An updated NLM logo.

No Lives Matter (NLM) follows an accelerationist extremist ideology and promotes targeted attacks, mass killings, and criminal activity, and has historically encouraged members to engage in self-harm and animal abuse. NLM states that "societal standards should not exist. They are to be crushed by any means possible. If they comply to the societal standards[,] they are mundane," and encourages the "spread of terror to all who are mundane." In April 2024, NLM publicly rejected further association with the online violent torture and sextortion network, 764. NLM stated that it "was originally formed as an ideology…for 764 to follow," but the "alliance" with 764 was discontinued due to the network's ties to Satanism and pedophilia. Since disassociating with 764, NLM provided clarifications on its ideology, highlighting that it is returning to its "misanthropic" ways and that it is "back to the mundane killing ideology." While NLM encourages new membership based on its updated ideology, there is no indication that it has established supporters in New Jersey.
